The American Indian Health Commission is convening focus groups across the state in six regions for Tribal and Urban Indian community members to express concerns and share ideas about the health and well-being of American Indian/Alaska Native mothers, children, and families to inform MICAHA, a statewide health assessment conducted every five years. We are currently recruiting 40 individuals from the following Tribes:

- Squaxin Island
- Shoalwater Bay
- Chehalis
- Nisqually
- Cowlitz

American Indian and Alaska Native community members, including young adults, parents, and grandparents are invited to come and share your ideas and/or concerns about:

- Maternal and women's health
- Prenatal and infant health
- Child health
- Adolescent health
- Children with special health care needs
- Impacts of the opioid/ fentanyl epidemic on women, infants, children and adolescents and families

All participants will receive a $100 gift card for their time. Lunch will be provided.

After registration, up to 40 participants will receive confirmation of the invitation. The focus group will take place at the Squaxin Island Community Kitchen; specific details on location, including maps and directions, will be provided with your confirmation.
